Telehealth enables the delivery of specialized health care to patients living in isolated and remote regions. Of 712 total telehealth encounters, medical oncologists had 595 encounters, genetic counselors had 112 encounters, and medical geneticists had 5. The analysis determined the current usage of teleoncology in mainland British Columbia. Patient appointment data was taken from the Cancer Agency Information System (CAIS) in 2009.

© Oxford University Press 2011. DOI: 10.1093/jnci/djr452